End hunger. Start here.

Food Pantry Sunday at Salem, August 10th!

News from Marie...

I pray all of our families have had a restful and relaxing summer. Great things have been going on to prepare for our new church school year. We will kick off the year on Sunday, September 7th with an Education Fair, which will highlight our children, youth and adult offerings for the 2014-2015 year. The fair will begin at 10:10 AM, after worship. The entire congregation is invited to come back to the church school area to view our NEW church school program, see our classrooms, learn about ways to get involved and share their gifts and talents, and join in on a wonderful pancake breakfast. ALL ARE INVITED! God calls each of us to service. That is our mission as United Methodists. Mark your calendars now for this wonderful opportunity to come and see all that will be happening with our children, youth, and adults and ways that you can get involved.

Vacation Bible School-

We had a great week learning about "Weird Animals". Our theme was that God filled the world with a lot of crazy creatures...including us! When kids feel weird, different, or even lost in a crowd—nothing compares to the extraordinary love of Jesus. They had fun hearing the word through song, scripture, craft, snack, games, and during the opening and closing each night. Salem had a great time hosting the final evening. We had a bonfire, sang songs, and had our snack. We couldn't have asked for a nicer night! The children and adults of First UMC were thrilled to once again be on our property, and loved running through the Grove. Thanks to all who helped make this week so much fun and memorable for our children.

God isn't finished with us yet!

By Barbara Bruce

The church is venturing into new territory as it finds ways to use the gifts and talents of the amazing numbers of people who are retiring at an astounding rate. Many of these people are searching for ways to add meaning and purpose to the productive years that lie ahead. People are discovering that golf and bridge are not all there is to senior life. They are finding ways to use their gifts serving in God's community.

Here are some stories of engaged, committed and active seniors continuing to serve God through their volunteer efforts. They have retired from their paying jobs, but not from the church or the new ministries to which God calls them. They are using God's gifts to change the world – one person at a time.

Malinda Wilson, Avon, NY: She realized that many older adults seem to have lost their purpose in life and have no place to go. Her dream is to start a program at her church in which older adults would meet bi-weekly (at first) to share stories and connect with people socially for coffee. They might also play games or hear book reviews. Malinda knows the importance of socialization as we age. Once the ministry is up and running, she wants to add programming and mission work to give these folks a sense of meaning and purpose in their lives. God isn't finished with her yet!

Don & Barb Weaver, New York:

Their passion over the years has been disaster-relief work. They have worked with UMCOR and Children's Disaster Services. Barb trains leaders and helps children through the trauma of a disaster, while Don guides adults through hundreds of issues bound in red tape.

They have served in the wake of natural and human-caused disasters, including the shootings at Columbine High School in Colorado, the 9/11 tragedy, Hurricane Katrina and catastrophic storms in Oklahoma nationally and internationally in Japan, Bosnia and several countries in Africa. They continue to live their passion for working in the world to help God's people in disasters. God isn't finished with them yet!

Jack Burke, Fernandina, FL: Jack has been involved in the Personal Energy Transportation (PET) project through his local United Methodist Church. The worldwide project provides mobility for people who have lost their legs. This project "seeks to reflect the love of God by bringing the gift of mobility and dignity to those in developing countries who are unable to walk." Jack and his team of 12 men create the metal parts of mechanical devices. They are packaged and sent around the world to more than 100 countries. God isn't finished yet with Jack.

While teaching in the Small-Membership Church Initiative around the United States in the 1990s, I heard countless stories of small churches who took on community projects and made a huge difference in the lives of people in need. One small church, self-described as "we are mostly ladies with gray hair," took on the task of rehabbing items from a clothing drop-off. They took donated clothes, washed and ironed them, sewed on buttons and stitched hems. They saw their actions as a continuation of their service to God through their church. Some of these volunteers were homebound. One woman told me with pride, "I don't get around too well any more, but I can still sew a straight hem." God isn't finished with them yet!

God's work is never done. If we are truly the head, hands and feet of Christ in our world, we must continue to find ways to serve. We who have many years of expertise and who have walked through the dark nights of our souls have much to share with those who are taking over the leadership of the church.

The United Methodist Church offers countless opportunities for assisting God's people in need. They include the United Methodist Volunteers In Mission (VIM), United Methodist Committee on Relief (UMCOR), and Nomads On Mission Active in Divine Service.

I invite you to find creative and innovative ways to serve your church through outreach and mission. God isn't finished with us yet. Amen!

On Sunday morning, July 13, we were pleased to witness the Holy Baptism of Damian Edward Padgett and Owen Gary Padgett. Damian and Owen's parents are Michael and Laura Padgett of Wauwatosa, WI. Proud grandparents are Ed and Betty Padgett. The Godparents are Chris and Deb Johnson from Rochester, MN. The twin boys were born on March 18th, 2014. With the sacrament of baptism, we rejoice as God pours out the Holy Spirit upon Damian and Owen and bestows his grace upon them.
